The Narrow Escape of the Others of Ten Fam-ilies in the "Cambridge"—Miss Wakeman's Brave Effort to Save her Invalid Mother —The Alarm and the Flight for Safety.

The Cambridge Flats, at 48 East Sixtyfourth street, were almost entirely destroyed by a fire yesterday, that also resulted in the death of Mrs. Abram Wakeman, aged 56, and Miss Rosamond Wakeman, aged 21, the wife daughter of ex-Surveyor Abram Wakeman. The thirty-seven other occupants escaped, but only after great peril. The building is a brown-stone double flat, about midway be tween Madison and Park avenues. It has five stories and a basement in front, and above the stanks and flame centre, through the foot of he room, the feature of the room, the feature of the room of the feature of t the other windows opening into the bedrooms, and for a time got beyond the control of the firemen, who were further detained by the necessity of arousing the occupants of adjoining houses, so that they could gain the roof and light the fire from the top of the building.

Mrs. M. G. Mather and daughter of the next flat on the second floor got out safely by the fire escape. Mrs. J. L. King and son on the third floor and a visitor from Oswego, Mr. Parkhurst, first sought exit by the main hall, but were driven back by the smoke. Then they went to the fire escape. Mr. Charles Coulter, who also lived on the third floor with his mother and sister, got out all his family by the fire scape, although Mrs. Coulter was suffering from a broken arm. er and sister, got out all his family by the lire scape, although Mrs. Coulter was suffering from a broken arm.

On the fourth floor lived Mrs. Abram Wakeman, wife of ex-Surveyor Abram Wakeman, and her daughter Rosamond. Mrs. Wakeman was partially paralyzed, and it was difficult for her to walk. She slept in the reom near the air shaft. Miss Rosamond slept with Miss Perkins, a nurse, axed 82, in the front room off the parlor, and must have heard the commotion late, as her room was remote from the air shaft. She apparently concluded at once that it would be impossible to get her aged nurse and paralyzed mother down the fire escape. She first got Miss Ferkins partially dressed, and pushed her out into the smoke-filled hall, urging her life make her escape. Then, regardless of her own safety, she went bravely back to help her mather. She managed to get her down one flight of stairs and along the short space to the bearinning of the flight below. There both were overesme by the smoke and suffocated. Their bodies were found four feet apart. Mrs. Wakeman was in advance of her herole daughter, who had evidently stayed behind to en-

Miss Perkins had fallen and insed her arm on the way down and was with lenlty rescued by the firemen. She was too led overcome to tell of those she had left ind and it was a long time before the firencould light their way through the smoke i flame to the third door landing where the fer and daughter lay.

The bodies were discovered at about the same why Battalion Chief Fisher. Foreman Cook, i Private Attridge of Engine 32 who stumd over them. The charred and disfigured mains were taken to the Morgue. Early in morning they were identified by Mr. Abrain keman, Jr., and as soon as Coroner Martin's mit could be obtained they were taken in tree by Undertaker Senior. Ex-Surveyor keman was not in the house at the time of fire, and was shocked to hear of it on his our from Albany yesterday morning. Mr. Mrs. Day roturned on the same train, and we kept in an agony of suspense until they other daughter, as they learned of the life he railway station.

Mr. A. J. Meldrum and his daughter, who occupied the other half of the floor on which Mrs. Wakeman and her daughter lived, escaped by the fire escape, as did also Mr. Myers and his mother and sister on the fifth floor, and Miss Waters and sister on the fifth floor, and Miss Waters daughter of the Rev. Dr. Waters on the fifth floor, and this mother and sister on the fifth floor, and this wild.

The seven servants on the sixther top floor were panic stricken. They tried in vain to go down through the smoke by the main stairway. Antie Smith, Mrs. Wakeman's servant, said she could have sinest out the smoke with a knife. She went to the roof, and then started back for some of her cichning. Capt. Peried found her thers, and the firemen made her go down by the roof of an adjoining building. She was cared for by a neighbor. The other servants see aped both by the roof of the adjoining buildings and the fire escape.

The firemen first tried to put out the fire in the basement, but were driven back. Then they tried to work in the halls, but the air shalf sent the fire far beyond their reach. Engine 30 was joined by Engines 44 and 23, and trucks 2 and 13, and later by Engine 8. A vast volume of water was poured into the building from the roofs of adjoining buildings, and at last after nearly the entire three upper floors had been gatted, the flive was put out. Strangely enough, the main staircase was not burned. President Gorman of the Fire Department was present, and Police Capt. Gunner, with a large detail of men, did efficient police work. The losses could not be accurately ascertained yesterday, but the losses are roughly reported as follows:

Thos. Reid, building $70,000 M. J. Mather. $2,000 W. G. Pletcher. $2,000 J. L. Knox. $2,000 W. G. Pletcher. $2,000 J. L. Knox. $2,000 W. H. Thompson. $2,000 C. J. Coulter. $2,000 H. S. The domestics lost all their ciothing. But are thankful to have escaped with their lives. Mrs. King left her jewelry lying on her bureau. The premises adjoining were somewhat damaged by water, especially those of Mr. L. Geekondorf, at 46, and T. H. Schultz, at 50 East Sixty-fourth street. All the tenants of the burned building were in comfortable circumstances, and the majority had relatives or friends in the neighborhood, to whom they fled for shelter.

The origin of the fire is yet in doubt. The janitor says it did not come from the neighborhood of the furnace. Mr. Fletcher thinks it came from a defective flue, and this was in all probability the case, as the space between the floorings was where it was first noticed. It may have smouldered long before it was discovered. The firemen wondered that it spread so rapidly.

The basement was occupied by the janitor. David Lyens, a colored man, his wile, and three small children. They lived on the cast side of a hall in the centre of the basement, and on the west side were coal bins, the furnace, and storerooms. The apartments of the two families on each floor were feached from the hall, which on the first floor ran to about the centre of the building, where there was a winding staircase leading to the upper floors. Adjoining this staircase, and furnishing light to it and to the bedrooms of the tenants, was a ten-foot-square air shaft. The rooms of each flat extended from front to rear, each suite having an inner hall. Ladders at the rear of the house led from one fire escape to the ton of the house to the bottom. It was by this that most of the tenants escaped.

The fire was first viscoovered shortly before a c'clock in the morning by Mr. William G. FOR SEIZING FURNITURE.

Dealers on the Installment Plan Arraigned in a Police Court.

Patrick O'Farrell, a furniture dealer at 267 Bowers, charged by Emma Woodman of 400 East Eighty-seventh street with adding the bill of a second lot of furniture to the bill of a first lot, and then seizing both lots, although the first bill, amounting to $64, had been paid, failed to appear in the Harlem Police Court vesterday morning in answer to a summons, and a warrant for his arrest on a charge of receiving stolen good was issued by Justice Murray. The police failed to find O'Farrell, but in the afternoon he appeared in court accompanied by counsel and James Gleason, who sized the goods. The defence attempted to prove that the bills were merged in one with the consent of the compainant. This she denied. Gleason was held in $500 for trial for larceny. O'Farrell pleaded that he was not the one who had sold the goods and that he had simply acted from information furnished by his employees. Justice Murray said that dealers could not afford to make such mistakes and held O'Farrell in $500 bail to answer.

The case of Many Caldwell of 47 West 132d street against Michael Gowsherowsky of 137 Orchard street was then called. The complainant's husband had purchased furniture of W. S. Eisler a furniture dealer at 81 Bowery and claimed that the bill presented was exorbitant. He demanded a corrected bill before anying. PROCEEDINGS AT ALBANY. Mr. Gerry's Bill in Behalf of Young Children

ALBANY, March 7 .- Mr. Clark of New York introduced a bill in the Assembly to-day to amend the railroad law which prohibits the Legislature from reducing fares and freights when the earnings of a corporation on its cap-ital stock are less than 10 per cent. Mr. Clark proposes to permit the reduction when the earnings are more than 5 per cent.

Committee, reported the Supply bill. It appropriates $358,518, as against $399,766 last year. Only two members of the committee, Messrs. Spinola and Henry, voted in favor of an appropriation for the Catholic Protectory, and that item was omitted from the bill. The bill was made the special order for next Tuesday. The bill providing for a Court of Claims passed with only nine dissenting votes. Mr. J. W. Higgins's bill providing for a Canal Commission was defeated by a decisive vote.

Many local bills were passed.

The Senate occupied itself in discussing a bill sent here by Eibridge Gerry of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and introduced by Mr. Grady. It prohibits the employment of children under 14 in any manufacturing industry in this State, and also forbids the employment of children under 16 in similar work unless they have a certificate of a physician that they are physically capable of performing the work. Senators McArthur. H. A. Nelson, F. Lansing, McCarthy, Covert Elsworth, and others opposed the bill as being against the interests of the poor and not demanded or asked for by any class of working people. Mr. Grady was the principal advocate of the bill, which after a two hours discussion, was killed by a vote 17 to 6.

Mr. Jacobs from the Finance Committee, reported the annual Appropriation bill, which was made a special order for to-morrow.

A resolution of Mr. Daly was adopted authorizing the Finance Committee to investigate and report by what methods dealers in worthless mining stocks manage to sell and dispose of the stock of these insolvent and bankrupt companies.

Mr. Grady introduced a bill previously nobill sent here by Elbridge Gerry of the Society

URIAH MOYER HANGED.

A DOUBLE MURDER OF WHICH FOUR MEN WERE CONVICTED.

One Dying in Prison, One Hanged a Tear Age, but Believed to Have Died Inne-cent, and the Feurth to be Pardoned. MIDDLEBURO, Pa., March 7.-Urlah Moyer was hanged in the jail yard in this place, at 8 minutes past 11 this morning, for the murder of Gretchen Kintzler, on Dec. 8, 1877. He passed a very quiet night, sleeping well. When he was led out of his cell to the scaffold he stepped up firmly and exhibited great nerve. The prisoner gazed calmly on the crowd of 250 persons, and said that the murder was committed on Friday evening by him and Emanuel Ettinger; that he and his brother Jonathan and Ettinger robbed and burned the body and the premises on Saturday evening. He said, too, that it had been said that his brother Joseph was also present, but that was not so. A prayer was then offered by the Rev. L. C. Edmunds, to which Moyer made responses. After this the Sheriff pinioned his arms and ankles, and the rope was adjusted. The white cap was placed over his head, and the drop fell. He died without a struggle, in about seven minutes.

Uriah Moyer was convicted in December.

1881, of the murder of Gretchen Kintzler.

John Kintzler and Gretchen, his wife, were an aged couple who lived in an unfrequented place about ten miles from Middleburg, near the foot of Jack's Mountain. It was generally understood among the neighbors that Kintzler haid a considerable amount of money in his house, the heardings of years. The crime, according to the testiment, was committed on Saturday evening, Dec. 8, 1877. After killing the aged couple the murderers set fire to the dwelling, and consumed it and the bodies of their victims. Owing to certain declarations made by some neighbors of the Kintzlers, suspicion at once attached to Moyer, his brother Jonathan. Emanuel Ettinger. Israel Erb, and several others, and they were all arrested, but were subsequently released on a writ of habeas corpus. They were again arrested, however, upon information given by a young woman Mary Hartier. Esb was tried and acquitted under the charge of the Court, there being insufficient evidence. A nolle prosequi was entered in the other cases, and the prisoners were all discharged. Thus the matter rested until the fall of 1880, when a detective was omployed to forret out the percentarors of the crime. The result was the arrest of Jonathan Moyer, Israel Erb, and Emanuel Ettinger, with his mistress. Mary Hartler, The two latter were brought to this county, the one to answer the charge of murder and the other detained as a witness. Ettinger was tried first, and at his trial Mary Hartley, The two latter were brought to this county, the one to answer the charge of murder and the other detained as a witness. Ettinger and the two Moyers and their wives, left the house of Jonathan Moyer and went to the Kintzler premises. He is tall, straight, and well built, and a great contrast to Majone, who is small, with stooping shoulders.

Majone has the look of a hunted animal. His pale face betrays anxiety, and his prominent eyes have a wild expression. He pays more attention to his rehgious exercises than McGioli, and when not praying with the priests reads in an Italian prayer book. He has a habit of going up close to one of the deputy sheriffs and standing, staring into his face with a dized look. This makes the deputy nervous, and he tries to turn Majone away by some remark. Majone then says, Me no understand English, and goes away;

At 60 clock in the afternoon a tailor brought Majone a suit of bia-k clothes, which had been bought for him by Father Analeltus. It was a frock coat and yest of broadcloth, and trousers of doeskin. Warden Finn carefully examined the clothing before allowing it to be carried into the prison. Mr. Finn is very kind to the two men, and they like him, but he is watchful to prevent any weapon or poison from being smuggled in to them. The Warden enanct be brought to talk of the hanging, and sludders whenever the gallows is mentioned. He says that constant association with these men and a knowledge of many good qualities which they possess have caused him to forget that they are murderers.

Majone was plainly affected when the clothing was handed to him. It seemed to give him a painful sense of his position. He examined it carefully, and said: Too good, too good. It was a better suit of clothes than he had ever had in his life. He was to wear it from his cell to the gallows. He tried on the coat and smoothed it down and buttoned it. He seemed pleased with its filt, and made some laughing remark to one of the Sheriffs.

FLIGHT OF A MURDERER.

Lon Houck Cuptured in Los Angeles, Cal. After a Chase of Five Years.

St. Louis, March 7 .- Lon Houck, alias Doc Davis, passed through this city to-day in charge of John T. Norris, detective of the Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo Railroad Norris captured his man at Los Angeles Cal. after a chase of five years. The crime for which Houck is going back to Delaware county, Ohio, to stand trial, was committed in 1878. On Jan. 31 of that year four men occupied a smoking car of a train on the Columbus. Hocking Valley and Toledo Railroad which was approaching Delaware, Ohio. Houck, a drummer named Houghton, and Paul Lohman were playing cards in one of the seats. A fourth man looked on. Houghton was apparently playing into Uriah Moyer was convicted in December, 1881, of the murder of Gretchen Kintzler.

Houghton, and Paul Lohman were playing cards in one of the seats. A fourth man looked on. Houghton was apparently playing into Houck's hand, and Lohman was the victim of the pair. After losing heavily Lohman arose and accused the others of swindling. Aquarrel ensued, which was suddenly terminated by Houck shooting Lohman, who died seen afterward. Then, with a cocked revolver in either hand. Houck intimidated the passengers rushed to the car door, and jumped to the ground while the train was going at a high rate of speed, and before the train could be stopped in had disappeared. Houghton was arrested and tried as an accessory to the murder, and sentenced to two years in the Columbus ponitentiary, receivering his freedom in 1881. The hunt for Houck was instituted by the railroad company, and was unsuccessful until a few days ago, when he was arrested in Los Angeles Cal.

The career of Houck subsequent to his capture was a varied one. He went to Washington, and while there communicated with his father and wife, who met him at the national capital. His wife accompanied him in his long flight from justice, From Washington he went to Norfolk, Va., setting sail from that point for Key West, and thence for Havana. He was followed to Florida, but there all trace of him was lost, and it was supposed that he had gone to Europe. A year later he went to Texas, where Norris obtained trace of him while he was following up another case. A chase from town to town was begun, but Houck outwitted his pursuer. He then wont to Chihuahua, Mexico, and thence to Tucson, Arizona, where he settled down with his wife, leading an exemplary life. At length he was again in danger of apprehension, and returned to Chihuahua, where he gained prominence through another marker. One day he induced a Mexican to join him in a game of cards, which resulted like all games in which Houck was interested. The Mexican, anxious to retrieve his fortune, again met Houck the same night, but this time without a third party. Toward midnight Houck left the room

Wednesday, March 7.

The stock market was variable and irregular during the norning hours. There were large transactions in St. Paul common and Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, but business generally was dull. Between noon and 2 P. M. the movement was quite sluggish, but prices were hardening. In the last hour the market continued quiet at pretty full figures, but the final close was weak. The more important changes for the day were as follows: Advanced—Central Pacific, 18; New Jersey Central, 18; Ontario and Western, 18; St. Paul common, 18; Union Pacific, 18; Oregon and T. C., 18. Declined—Manhattan Elevated, 118.

Government bonds were quiet but steadier. WEDNESDAY, March 7.

Government bonds were quiet, but steader. State bonds very dull. Railroad bonds were much less active and prices irregular, but the changes not important. Prime investments continued dull. Sterling exchange drooping; sight drafts, $4.83@$4.84; 60-day bills, $4.80\4@$4.81\4.

Money on call 7@11 7 cent. throughout the day, opening and closing at 7.

Money on call 76:11 % cent. throughout the day, opening and closing at 7.

Receipts of internal revenue to-day, $399,931; customs, $372,328; national bank notes for redemption, $166,000.

Secretary Folger denies that he has said it would be a long while before any more bonds would be called. The recent advance in the rates for money has resulted, it is said, in requests being sent from Wall street to the Secretary asking him to take some action to relieve what appears to be a stringency. Bankers conversant with Treasury affairs express the opinion that the only thing the Secretary can do is to anticipate the 120th call for $15,000,000 bonds which is due May 1.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue says that the banks, bankers, and national bank associations will not be required to pay the tax on capital and deposits under the new law after Jan, 1.

on capital and deposits under the new law after Jan. 1.

Virginia consols were quoted in Richmond, Va., to-day at 40 bid: 10-40s sold at 34; $10,000 new 3s sold at 50. The market is quiet.

In view of the accumulation of silver in the Treasury, and of the possible supremacy, in the course of a few years, of the silver dollars, several large lenders of money on bond and mortgage are now, we hear, inserting a clause in their contracts making principal and interest payable in gold coin.

The amount of buillon withdrawn from the Bank of England on balance to-day is £100,000. It was withdrawn for shipment to New York, Paris advices quote 3 % cents at $2,325, and exchange on London at 25,24.

R. S. Hayes, Vice-President of the Missouri Pacific Railrond, are to be elected directors of the Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific Railway at the annual meeting next week, and that no other new names are to be added to the present Board. One of the two mentioned takes the place of G. G. Haven, who retired some months ago. The annual report of the company will show a floating dobt of about $2,500,000 and that it holds against it available assets for nearly the entire amount.

The movement in the income land grant bonds of the Texas and Pacific Bailroad has been accompanied by many reports. There are $4,690,000 of these bonds outstanding, $219,000 having been received by the company for lands sold. They are a first lien upon about four and a half million across of land and a third mertgage upon the Eastern division of the company's road, namely, $24 miles east of Fort Worth. Up to July I, 1881, the company under an option, paid the interest on them in serin, convertible into stock and receivable for land. Last year the interest was not paid in any form, and we are officially informed that none is likely to be paid this year. The company claims that the interest upon them has not been earned, either from that part of the road upon which they are a third mortgage or from the land department. Some of the bondhoiders take a different view of the matter, and are preparing to take legal measures in support of their views. In behalf of the company it is stated that the lands covered by the mortgage have rapidly increased in value of late, partly by the action of the State of Texas restricting the sale of its lands, and are now coming then the market at good prices. A deficiency in the market at good prices is completion, the company expects that within a short line interest upon the lands can be paid in cash.

The stockholders of the Cleveland Columbus, Cinemnat and Indianapolis Railway, at Cleveland today elected B S. Brown of Columbus, ton and Terre Haute road. The President's annual report shows that the totalbarnings for the year 1882 were $4.441,600, and the net earnings $831,630. The company lost ten days' business by the Cheinnatt floods.
